

THE BABIES AFLOAT.

THE WORLD'S excursion for poor children takes place to-day, and the little ones are having fine weather and will no doubt enjoy a happy time.

The feature of the excursion is the presence of the little invalids THE EVENING WORLD'S visiting physician has found and aided in the tenement-house districts during the hot summer months. Many of these suffering children owe their lives to the care and skill of this doctor, and to-day's pleasant and healthful excursion is an excellent supplement to his efforts on their behalf.

The good done by THE EVENING WORLD'S physician has necessarily been circumscribed, but it has been a blessing to the little ones nevertheless. Moreover it has this summer planted the seed of what may in the future prove a most valuable addition to the work of the Health Board's visiting corps in saving human life and bringing relief to little sufferers in the close and stifling tenement-houses of the city.

BAD DAY FOR BOATMEN.

The boatmen car was not in good luck yesterday. The driver of one of these public nuisances was committed to prison without bail to await the result of the injuries of a fifteen-year-old lad who was knocked down and crushed by a car of the Dry Dock line the previous evening. It is not yet known whether the driver was in the time performing some of the many duties which take his attention from his horses or whether the accident was due to reckless driving.

At the same time, Judge PATTERSON in the Supreme Court yesterday dissolved the injunction obtained by the Twenty-third Street Jigger Company restraining Coroner MESSERMAN from filing his records in the case of the inquest on the killing of Mrs. LEVY. The Court entirely sustains and justifies Coroner MESSERMAN, who will now complete the record, and probably issue his warrant for manslaughter against the directors of the corporation. The verdict found the system to blame for the death of Mrs. LEVY rather than the driver, who is forced to perform a conductor's duty.

These renewed butcheries on the boatmen lines show the necessity of the Aldermanic resolution requiring all cars to be run with conductors. Mayor HEWITT should approve the resolution at once, and it should be extended, if necessary, so as to include all boatmen lines run on crowded streets.

THE AQUEDUCT SCANDAL.

The Aqueduct investigation has thus far disappointed those who started it, for an object. It has not put Gov. HILL "in a hole." It has fully justified the Governor in the effective means he took to get rid of the old Commission and create the present Commission. It has shown that Mayor HEWITT in his letter begging the Governor to seek to bring about this desirable reform, was actuated by regard for the public interests and having just confidence in the integrity of Gov. HILL.

But it has also proved that the cleaning out of the old methods has not yet been as complete and satisfactory as it ought to be. Yesterday, the testimony of other contractors confirms the story that they had invested money in a bubble company started by Chief Engineer CURTIS, in order to make the Chief Engineer "more friendly" to them.

The exposure of the scandals of the removed Commissioners and of the "bargain" by which Senator FASSETT and others were induced to support the Aqueduct bill of 1886 are now things of the past. But Mr. CURTIS is still engineer. Ought he to remain in that position a day longer than necessary?

The discovery of the real forger of the checks of HORACE MOODY, the Cotton Exchange broker, has released from suspicion and from confinement Mr. WILLIAM GANTZ, the nephew of Mr. MOODY, who had been arrested for the crime and positively identified by Mr. HILL, cashier at Delmonico's Beaver street house, as the person who passed the checks. As the checks were really presented by messenger boys, Mr. HILL's testimony is unaccountable. Mr. GANTZ is entirely innocent and honorably exculpated. Yet Mr. HILL's singular mistake put him in a dangerous position.

Judge MULLER's testimony yesterday proved very conclusively that he, as Secretary of the Democratic State Committee in 1886, and JOHN O'BRIEN, as Chairman, raised money for campaign purposes to offset $40,000 given by the Republican candidate to the Republican State Committee. Not being asked to get the money they wanted, they asked Gov. HILL to make the notes on which they raised the funds and which they guaranteed to take care of.

The general impression is that WILLIAM B. GRACE had better go to Peru.

Mayor HEWITT tells the new Know-Nothing party that the issue now is "Revenue Reform" and that native Americanism must wait. But he predicts that in 1892 the issue will be on the old Know-Nothing cry, "America for Americans." The same prediction has been made by Gen. BORTZMAN of old. But as he is 65 years of age, it is not likely that he will be in the field in 1892.

People's Party" would be powerful in 1888, it may be equally mistaken in its forecast that the native American party will be in the foreground in 1892.

The ocean race between the European steamers which left New York last Saturday has resulted in the victory of the Umbria, which was signalled off Brow Head at 4.13 this morning. The City of New York, although free from the effects of Mr. BLAINE's magnetism, was not then in sight. The weather was very clear. Hurray for the Umbria! Yet she is not one of the really "fast" boats of the Cunard line.

WORLDLINGS.

Thirty-one of the ninety-six counties in Tennessee contain no railroads.

As a test of his memory a gentleman of Athens, Ga., read through an article a column and a half in length in a newspaper he had not previously seen, and then repeated it without an error.

The largest stately cash purchase of real estate in the history of Chicago was made last week, when William A. Slater, of Norwich, Conn., paid over $500,000 for the Moore block on Dearborn street.

Mrs. Sarah Reid, of Chester, N. H., a widow eighty-one years of age, moved and put into her barn this summer one-half a ton of hay. For the last five years she has cut her own straw and her barn is the best kept in the neighborhood.

A lady who was one of a party of tourists making the ascent of Pike's Peak last week, was struck by lightning while standing at the door of the signal station on the very top of the mountain.

This is the first instance known in the State of an electrical disturbance occurring above the clouds.

THAT INTERESTED JOKER.

HE IS ENDEAVORING TO FIND THE CHEST-NUT HE SUBMITTED.

She Was Only Telephoning.

Madam—Mary, why were you kissing the young man in the kitchen last night? Mary—Oh, madam! I was not kissing. It was my cousin. He is deaf and I was only telephoning to him.

He Was Not a Stage Driver.

All the old residents of Goshen and Florida remember Ketch Gibson. For many years Ketch carried the mail and passengers between Florida and Goshen. He was called Florida. George Millsap and Judge Green, of Goshen, were the attorneys. Judge Green—Mr. Gibson will take the stand. Mr. Gibson, I believe you drive the stage between Florida and Goshen. Gibson—No, sir. I do not. Judge Green—I think you do not understand my question. Gibson—Yes, I do. I never drove a stage in my life. Judge Green—Have you been drinking to-day, Gibson? Gibson—Only the three times I drank with you, Judge. Judge Green—That is all, Gibson. Ketch Millsap—One moment, now, Judge. What have you got to do with the stage, anyhow? Gibson—I drive the horses, square. The court was adjourned, and all went over the way for liquid refreshments.

Bill Hick Asks a Question.

Bill Hick, Editor of the Evening World, the other day, was riding in a horse-car the other day, and as the car turned the corner he saw a man sitting up against an end, and I swore, rattling at him at me, and said: "How dare you swear before my wife?"

Now, how did I know that his wife wanted to swear first? BILL HICK, Hoboken.

A Dangerous Disease.

There were preserved green tomatoes for supper, of which Katie seemed very fond. She had herself twice eaten them liberally and was about to take the last one in the dish for a third share, when her brother called up from the other end of the table: "Say, Katie, you'd better not eat any more of those green things. I hear there's a good deal of hog cholera around here."

A Good Present for His Pa.

"Johnny," said Mrs. Louis, who lives next week in your father's birthday. "What shall we present him?" "Buy him a pair of sport pants. He will not wear them, and he will give them to me." A. E. H.

The High Price Accounted For.

The other day while coming up the Bowery I happened to step into Louis's fancy goods store and saw a pair of sport pants. I looked at some stockings for herself, and when she asked the price of them she said $1. A pair. The lady remarked: "What under the price of a high pair of stockings? My dear madam, you must remember that you are a tall lady."

He Obedied the Letter.

The gentleman who had bought the house, his only objection being the advertising on the side wall. So a contract was made with the owner that he should paint the wall so as to cover the advertising. The gentleman bought the house and when he came to look at the wall he found, to his astonishment, everything upon the wall word for word excepting the signature of the contractor. "What under the price of a high pair of stockings? My dear madam, you must remember that you are a tall lady."

Null Joking About Baseball.

While on one will question Ketch's ability as a "pitcher," there is no doubt that as a "growler" Anson carries off first honors. Do you "catch" on? J. H. KETCHAM, 1602 Madison avenue.

Queer Happenings in Mr. Boggs's Store.

To the Editor of the Evening World: Reading of jokes in THE EVENING WORLD reminds me of the following: "Last Saturday evening a man asked me: 'Is this 228 Bowery?' I said: 'Yes, sir.' He came into the store with a box which carried a hat-box with the name McGinn on it. He says to me: 'I bought this hat here today and I want it changed.' When I said: 'Sir, this is not a hat store, but a shoe store,' he started off. He was quite sober. The other day an Italian asked me the price of a pair of shoes. I told him $2. He then asked me if they were 'mutton' and I said: 'No, John, this is not a butcher shop.' He laughed and went away. He meant, I suppose, I was selling sheepskin. Another man, not long since, came in and asked me for a black necktie. I sent him in next door to the florist's. Still another fellow came in to-day, and he was wearing a hat and a coat, and he said: 'I want a sandwich and sent him to the jeweller's next door. Another crank, who was trying on shoes one day, said he liked one shoe very well, only that it felt like a hammer on the heel.' These are not yams. They happened in my presence. If any of them are worth publishing I may send you some more. JAMES BOGGS, 228 Bowery.

The Judge's Job.

(From the Birmingham Age.)

The New York EVENING WORLD offers a cash prize of $100 for the best original joke of the season, the contest open to all. But N.Y. has agreed to act as judge of all jokes offered, but he will probably agree that it is not so very funny after all when he has read a million pages of copy.

Notes of the Campaign.

The Henry D. Parry Democratic Campaign Organization, of the Fourth Assembly District, met last evening at Barter's Assembly Room, 177 East Broadway, and unanimously passed resolutions endorsing the nomination of Cleveland and Thurman, and also endorsing the wise, non-partisan and magnificent administration of David B. Hill as Governor. The meeting called upon the delegates to the State Convention to tender Gov. Hill a unanimous re-nomination. Addresses were made by Matthew D. Reese and Prof. Peter E. Tappan.
